

Jacobean England

By Pheam Marta Yui

What is Jacobean England ?

The Jacobean Era is a period when King James the first ruled over England.

Facts about Jacobean era :

- The architecture was similar to the Tudor era.
- A group of English Catholics led by Guy Fawkes plotted to attack the Parliament and the King in the Palace of Westminster. They failed.
- There was advancement of modern science which was influenced by Francis Bacon.
- During the Jacobean period, people were religious. The religion was Christianity

Why is it important?

It is known for its art and architecture. One famous architect during this time was Inigo Jones, who was in charge of royal buildings starting in 1615.

Tobacco industry

The tobacco industry is really important during the era because of the health consequences. Without the tobacco products the economy will suffer.

Witch trials

When King James was throned. He convinced that the witchcrafts are dangerous to him. He was scared that the witches will murder him through the dark magic.

During the trial, 200 people were accused of practicing the dark magic and 20 were executed. However, the colony said that the trial was a mistake.

Change of the way chairs are made

Chairs were made with higher backs. They had rectangular seats.

