

Jacobean Women

By: Chess, Fenfen, Aom

The Jacobean days

The play Macbeth was created by Shakespeare during the 1600s, when women and men's equality was considered something like a joke

For example, the belief that Eve was built only to comfort Adam, obey him and accept that her status is lower.

Dominant women are considered to be unnatural and have mental disorders.

Some Jacobean women managed to get education or some power, though it is very rare. They do get a powerful positions only if all the male rightful position claimers are not available (dead).

The Jacobean Days

Life of a Jacobean women

Obey the male genders in the house

Dedicate themselves to their religions

Only get to rule
after their father
and husband dies.

Must be devoutly
religious and pure

Life of a Jacobean women

They are given the roles of a mother
and a caretaker

Must be against any violence
